Adviser

Andrew Lowenthal joined Manchester Square Partners at the beginning of 2016. He advises leaders and Boardrooms across a wide range of contexts and is one of the most experienced practitioners of Board Effectiveness Reviews in the UK.

Prior to MSP, Andrew spent 27 years with Egon Zehnder, where he most recently led the Global Board Practice across all industries for 4 years. He was at the forefront of the development work around Board Effectiveness from 2004. Previously, he led the Global Financial Services Practice for over 10 years.

Andrew's earlier career was with Lloyds Bank International in London and Paris and with JP Morgan and CSFB in London and New York. He has a degree in Engineering Science and Economics from Oxford and an MBA with distinction from INSEAD. He is a fluent French speaker.

Alongside MSP, Andrew is a Trustee of the charity Greenhouse Sports, which works to address the problems faced by young people growing up in deprived areas of London through the power of sport. He is also on the board of The Queen's Club. He is a past president of the INSEAD UK Alumni Association.
