Zoe Mayson acts as a sounding board and advisor to senior executives and board members. Her clients are often at critical transition points in their careers or are wanting to plan and manage their professional future. Clients include those leading businesses or functions in both public and private companies.

Zoe works across a number of different areas including assessment for selection, succession planning and development purposes; conducting board effectiveness reviews; and leading Manchester Square Partners' executive team effectiveness practice.

Prior to joining Manchester Square Partners in 2015, Zoe ran her own consultancy firm offering executive coaching and executive team facilitation.

Zoe has a BSc in Psychology and an MSc in Occupational Psychology from Birkbeck University of London.

Outside of work and family, Zoe is involved with 'Operation Smiles' in Ghana – a home for children and babies run by Afrikids; she is learning tennis, and loves the outdoors and cooking for friends.
